IMPACT: State & Local

Summary of Legislation: (Amended) Parent Teacher Conference and Professional Development: This bill provides that a maximum of three full school days or six half days when students are dismissed for staff professional development activities count as student instructional days for purposes of the required 180 day school year. It allows a school corporation to use no more than two half days of the six half days, or one half day of the three full days, for parent-teacher conferences. The bill voids provisions in the Indiana Administrative Code that allow partial school days used for parent-teacher conferences to count as partial student instructional days and that do not allow students to be dismissed for full days for parent-teacher conferences and staff professional development activities.

Effective Date: July 1, 2006.

Explanation of State Expenditures: Parent Teacher Conference and Professional Development: This provision should have no fiscal impact on the state since the number of instructional days the state funds remains unchanged.

Explanation of State Revenues:

Explanation of Local Expenditures: (Revised) Parent Teacher Conference and Professional Development: School corporations could experience a decrease in transportation costs and salaries of non-certified personnel if pupils are not being required to attend school during professional development days. Transportation costs are about $2.3 M to $2.6 M per day and the salaries of non-certified employees are about $5.6 M to $6.2 M per day. The saving on non-certified employees would depend if they were included in the full-day professional development.

Background Information: Currently, schools can use up to 6 half days per year for parent-teacher conferences or professional development.
